

Flex-a-lite® Introduces New Line of Cooler Cover Guards for Transmission and Engine Oil Coolers

- Aluminum cover plates provide protection for oil cooler against rocks and debris
- Designed and built in the U.S.
- Gator Clip mount allows for airflow through the cooler

Las Vegas – Translife® oil coolers from Flex-a-lite® have long been trusted to protect automatic transmissions, power steering and other vital components from damage caused by oil overheating, and now Flex-a-lite has developed a line of cover plates to protect these oil coolers from rocks and other debris.

Flex-a-lite cover guards are made in the U.S., formed and punched from 1/8-inch aluminum. They securely mount on Translife oil coolers using Flex-a-lite Gator Clips®. The design allows airflow, but protects the cooler from larger items that could potentially damage it. The covers also adds a cool, performance appearance to the oil cooler. They can be painted black to hide the cooler from being seen through the grille. Coolers come with either 3/8-inch barbed or -6 AN fittings, and they are available with a new “J” style return line.
