M.A.T. technology is one of the industry's foremost wheel flow-forming methods which was developed by Enkei. The M.A.T. process has a drastic effect on the microstructure of the aluminum. The result is an extraordinary improvement of the mechanical property of the material allowing increased strength. Many similarities in the M.A.T. method of producing wheels can be seen in the forging process.

Forging creates substantial design limitations so combining style with strength has always been a major challenge, not to mention the extremely high costs. Utilizing the M.A.T. technology process of flow-forming wheels ensures there are no design limitations and that the end user receives a wheel that is lighter, stronger, with anti-flex properties all at an affordable price.

Wheels that make all the late nights spent wrenching on your car worth it.
