Flow-Formed XIX XF43

Flow Forming is an incremental metal forming technique in which a disk or tube of metal is formed over a mandrel by one or more rollers using tremendous pressure. The final result is a wheel that's 30% stronger and 30% lighter than the traditional cast wheel.

Two-Piece Effect XIX X45

Most wheel manufacturers that venture into attempting to produce the 2-piece effect by inner-cutting the wheel, focus on machining the face of the material along the casting of the inner barrel. What XIX focuses on is milling an additional 5mm + material off, a German OEM Powder Clear Coat Standard and making sure that the step is highly visible. The X45 comes with replaceable bolt on rivets.

Deep-Barrel XIX X47

With deep barrel technology, concave vs. deep lip shouldn't be a decision you're forced to make any more. By combining the two features together, you get a wheel that is concave in nature and has a deep-barrel for those deep lip enthusiasts.
